Message from the President

My heart is filled with countless emotions as I write this message at the request of our honorable teachers. This souvenir is not just an ordinary Newsletter for me; it is a milestone in the journey of the Jet Kids family and a reflection of our growth.

In 2008, Jet Kids began its journey on the Sandwa—Mandwa road — a modest beginning, but one built on a big belief. We started with young children learning through play, activity, and joy, because we believed then, as we believe today, that childhood should never be lost in the rush to learn.

I still remember the doubts people had in those early days — does a small town like Pusad really need a school of this standard? Our answer was simple: the children of Pusad deserve nothing less, and they should not have to travel to Nagpur or Pune to find it.

From that beginning, the school grew steadily — one grade at a time, one teacher at a time, one family's trust at a time — until we became Pusad's first and only CBSE School.

Today, we are a full campus with more than 100 teachers and over 2000 children, and year after year, batch after batch, our board results have proven one simple truth: a child who begins their journey at Jet Kids can stand equal to the best students in the country.

I have spent my life as a doctor, and I can say this — very few things lift a community the way a good school does. That this school stands in my own hometown is the greatest joy of my life. None of this would have been possible without Dr. Asmita Malpani, whose nonstop dedication has shaped this school at every step of its journey, the steady leadership of our Principal Mrs. KG. Mini Kurup, and teachers who have cared for every child as their own.

And now, the pages you are holding. To me, a school truly grows up not when its results come, but when it begins to tell its own story. This newsletter — an initiative our teachers have lovingly brought to life — belongs to the entire Jet Kids family. In these pages, I hope you will find the life of our whole school: our children's imagination and creativity, our classroom moments, our wins on stages, sports grounds, and quiz competitions across the district — and all the small moments that never appear on a report card but make a school what it is. Years from now, a student may open this very first foundation stone at Jet Kids, and like everything else built here with love and hard work, I am sure it will live on, edition after edition, for many years to come.

The World Through a Student's Eyes

Every person sees the world differently. A doctor sees patients, a farmer sees fields, and a scientist sees experiments. But a student sees the world as a classroom full of lessons. Every day brings something new to learn, understand, and explore.

People often think that a student's life is only about studying and exams. But there is more to it. In school, we learn values, make friendships that become family, discover our talents in little moments, and celebrate our small wins together.

The world beyond our textbooks is just as full of hope and curiosity. We ask questions, make silly mistakes, and still, laugh and try again. Our teachers are not just teaching words - they shape characters. Our school is not just a building - it's a place where we are seen, heard, and encouraged every day.

To me, the world through a student's eyes is not just about books. It is about dreams, learning, friendships, challenges, curiosity, and hope.

In the end, I believe that being a student is not easy, but it is one of the most beautiful parts of our lives. Through eyes, a hopeful heart, and the courage to keep learning, no matter what, we become the best version of ourselves.

Rainy Season Brings Joy along Challenges

By Shahid Ahmed

Pusad July 24: The rainy season has been a mix of beauty and trials. Cool winds, green fields, and the pitter-patter of raindrops refresh everyone. However, it also brings some problems like water logging, traffic jams, and slippery roads. We should keep our surroundings clean, follow safety rules, and enjoy the greens and fresh air.

Most people enjoy the rainy season because it brings relief from the heat. Farmers and gardeners become happy as they get water for their crops. Children love to play in rain, wear their raincoats, and enjoy hot snacks, like corn, bhutta, and pakoras. Heavy rain can damage crops, cause floods in low areas, and create traffic jams. We should hot step on water, as it may contain germs. Spreading of diseases like cold, cough, and fever. is also common.

Plants are also helped to grow more trees, which gives us clean air. Let us all do our bit - keep our city clean, follow safety rules, care for nature, and protect it. Let us make the rainy season a happy and memorable time for all.

A Healthy Child Today,

A Strong Adult Tomorrow

As both a parent and a physiotherapist, I have learned that good health is built through small daily habits. Academic success is important, but a child's physical and mental well-being forms the foundation for lifelong learning and happiness.

Today's children spend more time on screens than ever before. Long hours of sitting, poor posture, and reduced outdoor play can affect their growing bodies. Encouraging children to stay active through sports, cycling, dancing, or simply playing outdoors helps strengthen their muscles and bones while improving confidence and concentration.

Parents can support healthy growth by ensuring their children:

- ♥ Maintain good posture while studying.
- ♥ Take short movement breaks every 30–40 minutes.
- ♥ Carry school bags correctly without excessive weight.
- ♥ Get adequate sleep and eat a balanced diet.
- ♥ Spend time outdoors every day.

Children learn more from what they see than from what they are told. When parents make exercise, healthy eating, and positive habits a part of family life, children naturally follow.

Let us work together—parents, teachers, and students—to create an environment where every child grows stronger, healthier, and happier. Healthy habits developed today will become the greatest gift for their future.

The Little Things We Forget

While Chasing the Big Things

- ✿ We often believe happiness lies in the next achievement—a better job, more money, or greater success. Yet, as one goal is reached, another appears. Perhaps happiness is not ahead of us; perhaps we simply overlook it.
- ✿ Like a child who stops enjoying his little red kite after seeing a bigger one, comparison steals our joy. Instead of appreciating what we have, we focus on what others possess.
- ✿ Every person carries an invisible backpack filled with fears, disappointments, and silent struggles. A kind word, patient listening, or simple encouragement can lighten someone's burden more than we realize.
- ✿ Failure is an event, not an identity. Just as children learn to walk by falling repeatedly, we grow through mistakes. What matters is the courage to rise again.
- ✿ In today's world, social media often makes us compare our ordinary lives with others' highlight reels. True happiness, however, is found in everyday moments—a shared meal, a loving conversation, a parent's hug, a friend's support, or laughter with family.
- ✿ People rarely remember us for our wealth or achievements. They remember how we made them feel—with kindness, compassion, understanding, and love.
- ✿ Happiness is not a destination but a way of living: working without tying our worth to success, resting without guilt, listening without judging, and valuing the people around us.
- ✿ Before asking, "What is missing from my life?" pause and ask, "What do I already have today that I would deeply miss tomorrow?"
- ✿ The greatest treasures in life are often the ordinary moments we take for granted. Slow down, cherish your loved ones, and enjoy the little red kite you already have—because happiness has been with you all along the journey.

Beyond Marks:

Building Healthy Minds in the Digital Age

Success is not about scoring the highest marks; it is about becoming the best version of yourself. As a paediatrician, I have the privilege of caring for children as they grow—not just physically, but emotionally and mentally. Over the years, I have noticed that many children become anxious during examinations. Some complain of headaches, stomach aches, disturbed sleep, loss of appetite, or difficulty concentrating. Often, these symptoms are not caused by illness but by stress and fear of failure. While a little nervousness is normal and can motivate us to work harder, excessive stress can affect a child's health, confidence, and performance.

It is important to remember that examinations assess learning at a particular point in time; they do not define a child's intelligence, abilities, or future. One of the best ways to manage exam stress is through healthy preparation rather than last-minute pressure. A realistic study timetable, regular revision, short breaks, adequate sleep, balanced nutrition, daily physical activity, and proper hydration help the brain perform at its best. Relaxation techniques such as deep breathing, mindfulness, or a few minutes of meditation can calm the mind before an exam.

Equally important is maintaining healthy digital habits. While the internet is a wonderful source of knowledge, excessive screen time, endless scrolling on social media, online comparisons, and digital distractions can increase anxiety and reduce concentration. Students should use technology wisely—learning from it without becoming dependent on it.

Remember, your mind needs time to rest just as much as it needs time to study. Parents and teachers are powerful pillars of a child's emotional well-being. Children flourish when they feel supported rather than judged. Instead of asking, "How many marks did you score?" let us also ask, "Did you do your best?" Appreciating effort, encouraging questions, celebrating small improvements, and creating a calm environment at home and school build resilience and self-confidence.

Every child learns differently, and every child deserves the opportunity to grow without the burden of unrealistic expectations. To every student reading this: believe in yourself. Your worth is never measured by a report card. The qualities that truly shape your future are curiosity, discipline, kindness, integrity, perseverance, and the courage to keep trying even after setbacks.

Success is a journey of continuous learning, not a destination marked by examination results alone. Dream big, work sincerely, take care of your health, and never be afraid to ask for help when you need it. A healthy body, a calm mind, and a positive attitude are the strongest foundations for lifelong success.

आई

ठेच लागली की आधी आठवते आई
सगळ्या दुःखांवरचे औषध असते आई

सार्थक होते जन्माचे एका हाकेने
तिचे तान्हुले तिला ज्याक्षणी म्हणते आई

धावते येतो सावरण्यासाठी बाळाला
बापाच्या डोळ्यांत डुबेडुब दिसते आई

तिला जपावे हृदयामध्ये प्रत्येकाने
हरवुन गेल्यावर कोठे सापडते आई?

कशी जिवाची फरफट होते ती नसताना
त्याला कळते ज्याच्यापाशी नसते आई

शब्दांमधुनी सुगंध येतो वात्सल्याचा
माझ्या कवितेला जेव्हाही सुचते आई

आई बदल कसे, काय अनू किती लिहावे
शब्दांचा सागर सरल्यावर उरते आई

Strengthening Our First School

♥ The Family ♥

♥ Dear Students,

Our school teaches you subjects, but your “first school is your home”. The values you learn there shape your entire life.

This is the core idea of “Kutumb Prabodhan” or “Family Awakening”. It is one of the 5 important social goals that remind us to make our families strong, united, and full of values.

Why is this important today?

In our busy schedule of classes, coaching, and mobiles, we often forget to talk to the people who love us the most. A strong family creates a strong society, and a strong society builds a strong nation.

I request all students to practice these 5 simple things:

- ♥ 1. “Respect Elders”: Greet your parents and grandparents daily.
Take their blessings before leaving for school.
- 🕒 2. “Eat Together”: Have at least one meal with your family without TV or mobile.
Share your day with them.
- 📅 3. “Build Good Habits”: Wake up on time, keep your room clean, and do your work yourself.
- 🎉 4. “Celebrate Together”: Enjoy festivals with your family.
Make memories, and try to understand the motto behind it not just take photos.
- 🤝 5. “Help Each Other”: Help your parents in small work.
Guide your younger siblings in studies.

Let our motto be: “Family First, Then Me”.

I challenge all of you to give just 10 minutes to your family every day. You will see the difference.

Let us work together to build strong families.

Because strong families will build a strong BHARAT.

आजच्या स्त्रीचे चित्र कसे?

ते असावे तलवारी जसे!
हात लावणान्याचा हात कापावा,
धाडस असा तिच्या उरी असावा.

संगोपन केले मातेने एका,
तरीही स्त्रीला असे ज्याचा धोका
ऐसा नराधम जो ही कोणी,
टाक त्याचा हात तोडूनी!

उठा, उठा स्त्रियांनो जाग्या व्हा!
जवाबदारी स्वतःची स्वतः घ्या.
असतील जरी बांगड्या हातात,
हिमत करा जी लाजवेल मर्दास.

लक्षात ठेवा, नारी ही सर्वोच्च शक्ती
पुढे तिच्या ब्रह्मांड ही झुकती
तिच्याशी जो खेळ करेल,
प्रकोपाने तो भस्म होईल!
प्रकोपाने तो भस्म होईल!

The Fire Inside Me

The fire inside me burns so bright,
Far stronger than my darkest night.
I stumble and fall, yet rise once more,
With strength I never knew before.

I walk this path with steady stride,
No borrowed hand, no place to hide.
Whatever life may choose to send,
I'll face it all until the end.

I live by truth, by my own way,
Not for the world, but each new day.
My scars I wear with quiet pride,
My victories walk close beside.

Each wound has shaped the soul I see,
Each trial has set my spirit free.
O Almighty, hear my humble plea:
Grant lasting strength and guide me.

When storms arise and shadows fall,
Give me the courage through it all.
Not merely to survive each test,
But to become my very best—
To stand unshaken, bold and free,
The person You created me to be.

ये सिर्फ बल्ले और गेंद का खेल नहीं,
ये मेरे जुनून की पहचान है।
ये मेरी बहसत, मेरा समर्पण,
यही मेरी असली उड़ान है।
गिरता हूँ, फिर उठ खड़ा होता हूँ,
हर ठोकर मुझे मजबूत बनाती है।
हार मुझे रोक नहीं सकती,
हर चुनौती नई राहें दिखाती है।
मैं एक छोटे से शहर का इंसान हूँ,
लेकिन हौसलों का आसमान साथ लाया हूँ।
सपने भले छोटे आँगन में जन्मे हों,
पर उन्हें पूरा करने का साहस साथ लाया हूँ।

अब मेरा सपना सिर्फ मेरा नहीं,
मेरे हर बिचार्थी की पहचान बने।
उनकी आँखों में जो ख्वाब है,
वे एक दिन हिंदुस्तान की शान बनें।
मैं उन्हें सिर्फ क्रिकेट नहीं सिखाऊँगा,
मैं उन्हें संघर्ष का अर्थ बताऊँगा।
कैसे गिरकर फिर उठना है,
कैसे हर मुश्किल से लड़ना है।
उनसे कहूँगा—आसमान कोई सीमा नहीं,
सीमाएँ तो केवल सोच बनाती हैं।
जिस दिन विश्वास अपने भीतर जागे,
मंजिलें खुद कदम चूमने आती हैं।
क्रिकेट मेरे लिए सिर्फ एक खेल नहीं,
ये समर्पण है, संस्कार है, पहचान है।
जब तक साँसों में दम रहेगा,
मेरे हर विचार्थी का सपना ही मेरी सबसे बड़ी जीत
और मेरी सबसे बड़ी शान रहेगा।

Unshed Tears

Never hurt your parents because they are the God and Goddess in the temple of your life.

Bring smile on their face not tears because they are the only one who always wipe your unshed tears.

Scatter fragrance in their life because you are the lovely flower of their garden.

Never create hell for them because heaven is in their feet.

Remember as you sow,
so shall you reap.
